President's Comments...

Dear Club Members,

Summer is almost wrapped up and the kids will be heading back to school. I hope everyone had the opportunity to get out and enjoy the phenomenal fishing this year in MN, SD & ND. I feel pretty lucky to live in an area where I could drive 3 hours in any direction to find great fishing.

I hope everyone is able to make it to our club picnic. It is a fun time to visit with other club members and share stories about this summers adventures. Don't forget to thank Ron & Kathy Sahr for their hospitality. We are so fortunate that they allow us to use their home for our picnic.

Lastly, If you plan on fishing the Cormorant Classic get your apps in. They are available at Scheels, Gander Mtn and Sportsman's Warehouse. You can also contact Ron Sahr or myself if you need an entry form. The YMCA will be cooking breakfast for all the anglers this year. Make sure to bring your appetites. The food should be tasty.

See ya'll at the picnic,

Chad Maloy, President

CLUB OUTING RECAPS

by Steve Hall

Big Stone Lake -- May 21 & 22, 2005

Mother Nature was no friend to us this time! She really had her way with us this tournament! High winds forced us to a one day only outing. It is the very first time I can ever remember this happening! We have had delays in the past but never a full day cancellation. Let's hope for better weather next year!

Devils Lake, ND -- June 18 & 19, 2005

Fishing was a little tough with a lot of small fish. But, everyone who stuck it out did catch fish. It seems like every time we go to a lake we learn more about it. Can't beat a good education!

Big Pelican -- July 9 & 10, 2005

Boy, this is a busy lake when it is hot outside! We had a good turn out for the outing. History was made. Ron Sahr won his first Club Outing and he has the biggest walleye caught during an outing this year! 5.22 lbs!

CLUB OUTING STANDINGS as of July 10, 2005

JUNIOR DIVISION TOP 5

Matt Kimball	20.90

Troubles with your Tournament Boat, Motor, Trailer... NO PROBLEM!

Tournament time seems to bring out the most untimely equipment breakdowns. The Cormorant Tournament fisherman will have "lakeside" help at their disposal. Once again Tim Sweeney of the J&K Marine Service Center located near Lake Ida will be available on both days of the tournament.

LAST CLUB OUTING FOR 2005

If you haven't joined in on a Club Outing this year, this is your last chance. We will be at Clitherall Lake in Ottertail County, MN on August 20 & 21, 2005.

I am not very familiar with this lake, actually I have never been on it. But I do know it is noted for excellent walleye fishing. We will run out of Scenic Point Resort, 7:30 a.m to 3:00 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday.

For camping reservations, please call Terry or Brenda at (218) 864-5748.

Hope to see you there!

A Horse of A Different Color

By Jason Mitchell

Late summer and early fall is an obvious period of transition. There are summer patterns that still linger and new patterns emerging. Usually on most walleye lakes, the traditional summer patterns are getting fished out. The fish get smaller and the spots dry up. This process of change doesn't happen over night however so some of the spots just linger, offering just enough fish to keep fishermen hanging around.

The patterns that can emerge in September are varied. In fact, there might not be another time of the year where so many patterns can exist at the same time. There is a good chance that there will be walleye utilizing some kind of habitat in the shallowest water and the deepest water. This in a sense really spreads out the fish. Spread out fish can also make for tougher fishing.

There is one pattern however that emerges each fall that I am quite fond of. The fish also give you clues themselves as to just how dialed into the pattern you really are. We fish a variety of tactics each year but one tactic that I really enjoy personally is Lindy Rigging. I love feeling a fish pick up the bait. I also feel confident with a Lindy Rig. Let's face it, a good piece of bait will always catch fish. We fish Lindy Rigs deep over rock piles especially late in the fall but early fall can offer great opportunities in the mid-depths of existing weed beds. The edges and open pockets of these weeds are great candidates for a Lindy Rig.

People have this assumption that weeds die in the fall. We find green weeds when ice fishing so let me assure you that there is plenty of green vegetation left, especially in early fall. We have found fish over both cabbage and grass. Usually, the outside edge coincides with deeper water but the open pockets inside the weed bed are often the result of a change in bottom, perhaps gravel or even rock. The outside and inside edge can be good and the pockets are usually worth checking out as well.

For walleye like the author is holding, Lindy Rigging existing weedbeds can be one of the most consistent patterns during early fall.

Polarized glasses are a must for finding the weed edges and good electronics will also give you more clues as to what you are fishing. We have all switched to the Vexilar Edges because the dual frequency enables you to figure out what is exactly below in so many situations.

The actual rigging may vary from lake to lake. My personal favorite setup is a NO-Snagg Singer combined with a short snell (three feet) and I usually like to put a small float ahead of the bait when working through weeds. The shorter snell seems to give me more control and I like to keep the weight in the cone angler of my Vexilar right below the trolling motor. The float seems to lift the bait enable the bait to slide through some of the weeds better. Again, I am targeting openings and edges so boat control is critical to keeping the presentation weedless.

The biggest clue to really getting dialed into this pattern however comes from the fish themselves. Remember that September is the month of change. There are fish on the move. Coming and going, fish seem to do an awful lot of moving in the fall. When fish do put on the miles, they become paler. The fish seem to lose some of their color. Changes in season will cause fish to move, as will changes in weather.

When fish are set up in a pattern however, the fish will have good color and usually be darker. Often, many of the fish we find in the fall have been on the move and we might have only intersected them between point A and point B. When the fish that you are catching don't have the normal color, watch out because there is a good chance those fish won't be anywhere close tomorrow. The beauty of weed fish is that they aren't nearly as nomadic as fish relating to other patterns.

During a time of change, consistency is golden. Literally. If the fish you are finding in the weeds have good dark colors, chances are they have been on that location all week and will probably be on that location tomorrow.

Devils Lake, ND -- June 18 & 19, 2005

by Guy Kimball

Outing Review

All we can say about Devils Lake is, that for us, it has to be a world class walleye factory right in our own backyard. Big lake, big water, and huge, fat & sassy fish, whatever the species.

Most of the Club members in attendance stayed at Graham's Island State Park. What a gem of a park; clean, lots of room, friendly staff and neighbors, mature shade trees, and outstanding fish cleaning facilities. One tip though, if you are in a tent and the forecast is for strong winds/storms you might want to consider NOT camping under large trees. Check with the Steve Q's family on that one.

On to the fishing. Some wind on Saturday, but manageable, even for 16' boats with 40hp motors. They just don't enjoy the range of the larger boats on the wind swept expanse of this fishery. Our boat tested the trees first near Fort Totten. Score one for the woods as my fishing partner (#1 son) neglected to take out Dad's favorite rod from the holder on the first jump to a new set of trees, and for the people who have fished the shelter belts, you pretty much know what happens when you pit a tree against a 7' fishing rod. Gnarly tree one, rod zero. So much for happy Father's Day. We managed some nice fish, saw lots of other nets flying, and visited with other club members at different spots on that side of the lake.

Day two found much calmer conditions and we set out for the Golden Road with our slip bobbers and leeches in tow. We found some structure unique to the road and splashed in the anchor. Everyone else out there was either riggin' or crankin' and we still fished with our slips. You are allowed 2 lines per person in the Summer on the big lake and normally we set one line with a slip and the other we fan cast with a jig but, as usual, the fish dictate the proper presentation and for us that meant STILL with the gentle wave action enough movement to entice a pair or 19" Walleye to gobble up our jumbo leeches. We like those words "git the net".

Our observations for success on Devils Lake in early June would be; fish the trees, give each tree spot 15 minutes unless you catch quality fish, change the color of your hook frequently, keep your line loose to allow the leech to bump along naturally (in other words cast into the wind and when your line finishes the drift, cast it back out immediately), and DON'T use your rod holders =)

Outing Review

Pelican Lake Outing -- July 23,24 2005

by Guy Kimball

On Saturday our event started out with a downpour and some sparks from above. After we got the all clear signal from our organizers our group took off from the West Access of Pelican Lake.

Most people started out in an area referred to as Broadwater and then dispersed from there. Judging from the campfire talk on Saturday night many different presentations were used such as rigging, bouncing, and pulling hard minnows. The typical depth that we heard at the campfire was deep (meaning 25 - 35 feet).

As usual the youth participants outclassed the adults at the weigh-ins, which included a 6 1/2# Northern and other various species brought up from the depths of Pelican Lake.

The members were treated to a meal of hamburgers, brats, and hotdogs in the parking lot after the weigh-in with Steve Q. coming up big with the special seasoning and, of course, Sharon's famous bars along with a delicious fruit salad. After our food settled the kids were challenged with a fishing obstacle course with various stations designed to test their fishing skills on land. Many laughs were had by the parents and other onlookers as the kids tore through the course.

Sunday brought 90 degree temps. and more flat water to the 11 or so boats present at the access. As an interesting sidebar it was so calm that a scheduled sailboat race was canceled due to the bluebird conditions. Again the initial pattern was duplicated for the second day with pretty much everyone stopping @ Broadwater for some friendly banter and culminating with Ron S. singing our National Anthem which pretty much sent both the fish and fishermen out of the area!

It seemed that with the healthy (and hungry) panfish population that the preferred presentation for the day would be to pull wood until someone spread the rumor that a 7# Walleye had been reeled in on a mid lake hump with a crawler.

One reason that my family chooses to fish our Club Outings is that you are forced out of your comfort zone as far as presentation is concerned during these dog day summer contests. I'm not very confident pulling wood around but after being nudged by my son (and running out of crawlers and leeches by the afore mentioned species) we preceded to catch a boatload of 15-17 inch Northern and Bass, which was great fun and am now a firm believer in #9 Shad Raps and their ability to catch a variety of fish. We had multiple doubles and many stories that would not have happened if it weren't for those darned panfish inhaling all of our live bait.

Versatility is the key and that is what our Club has taught us in these late Summer outings on our quest to become more efficient anglers.
